Protecting Your Privacy

IU Health Plans protects the privacy of your information in all settings. When you enroll in IU Health Plans you authorize your health care provider to release your confidential information to IU Health Plans and IU Health Plans' partners and any organizations who are under contract to perform health care operations on IU Health Plans' behalf unless you pay for the service in full in advance and ask that your provider not share such records with IU Health Plans. These entities shall all be bound by the duty to protect the privacy of your health information in the same manner that IU Health Plans is required to do so. This information may be used regarding claims payment, delivery of medical care, quality measurement reporting and other healthcare operations. Otherwise, no explicit or implicit identifiable information will be released to another organization without your explicit consent, unless otherwise required by law. You also have the right to access your medical records, in accordance with Indiana state law.
